How to take care of your bronze sculpture

The surface of your sculpture has been carefully finished with a wax layer to protect the patina (colour) from changing. To retain the shine on the sculpture gently buff with a soft cloth. Sometimes dust collects in the textures - for this I recommend a little liquid furniture wax eg Woodoc in the yellow bottle. Brush it on, let it dry and then polish with a soft cloth.

Bronze can live in or out of doors. However the climate may affect the patina if outside in the elements - changing it as the polish is washed off. This is a natural process and won't harm the bronze underneath only the colour and lustre of the sculpture. If you want to keep the original colour then regular re-waxing and polishing will help slow the colour change.
